The Healing Brush allows you to fix small, unexceptional flaws in an image. This is useful for digitally editing images. The Pen Tool allows you to draw lines and curves within an image. You can create all kinds of shapes, including freehand lines, circles, polylines, and ellipses. The Content-Aware Replacement allows you to correct or expand an image. This feature is similar to the clone tool, but you can choose the area you want to copy, and the program will only copy pixels from the area you specified. This feature is useful for correcting or retouching images. The Gradient tool lets you apply any of several pre-defined color gradients to an image. The most common gradients are red-to-blue and blue-to-red, but you can also use any color gradient. You can apply these gradients to virtually any object, even text. You can apply gradients to any color in an image, such as the colors of your image's background or people's clothing. The Gradient tool gives you complete control over the colors of the gradient. The Gradient tool gives you control over all the colors in your image. In contrast to the other color tools, the Gradient tool enables you to choose a color or colors from a gradient, apply them to an object, and then adjust the gradient. You can create gradient effects that consist of one or more colors (colorize an object, for example), or create gradients that fade between one color and another. Gradients are useful for adding or changing the colors of a photo's background, adding or changing colors in an object's color swatch, and adding or changing colors of text in an object. You can control the colors that you use for any of these tasks. For example, if you want to blue-lighten text, you can easily create a gradient containing a blueish color and set it to the color of the text you want to lighten. The Liquify tool is used to distort a photo into any shape you want, or to simply make it look more stylized. It's great for creating a more artistic, and often more interesting, looking photo. The Liquify tool makes it easy to create images that look like they were taken with a DSLR camera. It can make a photo look like it was taken in India or a portrait look like it was taken underwater. There are a variety of different brush tips available for the Liquify tool
